Emperor, on Account of Mourning for King Edward, Could Not Mast tha Roosavelts.

Berlin. - Theodore Roosevelt and Emperor William had their first long conversation Tuesday after luncheon at Poisdam. Standing apart from the other guests they talked earnesily together for more than sn hour.

The emperor's welcome to the former president was exceedingly cordial. Wearing the white and gold uniform of the Garde du Corps, with brasen helmet surmounted by a silver eagle with outspread wings, the emporer appeared at the entrance of the new palace on the arrival of the tarriages which brought Col. and Mrs. Roosevelt, Miss Ethel and Kermit to the palace gates. His majesty advanced quickly and shook hands warmly with each one of them. Later he presented his guests to the empress and the entire party sat down to luncheon at alx tables. His majesty had Mrs. Roosevelt at his loft and Mr. Roosevelt was seated between the empress and the crown prince.

At Poisdam the emperor and em-press treated their American gaests with great cordisity, engaging them in proloaged conversation in the small drawing room with other members of the royal family before luncheon. The smperor, after the other guests had gone, showed Col. Roosevelt and his family through the Sans Souci palace

The emporer has arranged for a sham hattle, in which 12,000 men of all arma will take part.

THE HICKMAN COURIER MODERN CIVILIZATION IS ROOSEVELT'S TOPIC

Interesting Lecture on "The World Movement" Delivered at the University of Berlin by the Ex-President of the United States

Berlin. — Ex-President Theodore by to what it is in England or the United Conserved appeared Thursday before States. Roosevelt appeared Thursday before an audience that tested the capacity of the aula at the University of Berlin and delivered a lecture on "The World Movement." He spoke in English and was listened to with the deepest in-

Reginning with an eloqueat eulogy of the German race and its achieve ments, the lecturer soon reached the main thema of his discourse, and revlewed the civilization and culture, so far as we know them, of the earliest peoples and their contributions to the modern world. He then continued:

At last, a little over 400 years ago, the movement towards a world civili-At last, a little over 400 years ago, the movement towards a world civilisation took up its interrupted march. The beginning of the modern movement may roughly be taken as synchronizing with the discovery of printing, and with that series of bold sea venturas which culminated in the discovery of America; and after these two epochal fests had begun to produce their full effects in material and intellectual life, it became insvitable that civilization should thereafter differ not only in degree but even in kind from all that had goho before. Immediately after the voyage of Columbus and Viseco da Gama there began a tremendous religious ferment; the awakening of intellect went hand in hand with the moral uprising; the great names of Copernicus, Bruno, Kepler, and Gaillio show that the mind of man was hreaking the fetters that had cramped it; and for the first time experimentation was used as a cheel upos observation and theorization. Since then, century by century, the changes have increased in rapidity and complexity, and have attained their maximum in both respects during the century just past.

Instead of being directed by one or two

Instead of being directed by one or two dominant peoples, as was the case vall similar movements of the past, new movement was shared by many new movement was shared by many dif-ferent nations. From every standpoint it has been of infinitely greater moment than anything hitherto seen. Not in one but in many different peoples there has been extranginary growth in wealth, in pepulation, in power of organization, and in mastery over mechanical activity and natural resources. All of this has been accompanied and aignalized, by an im-mense outburst of energy and restless initiative. The result is varied as it is atriking.

Conquest of the World.

tn the first place, representatives of this civilization, by their conquest of space, were enabled to spread into all the praccivilization, by their conquest of space, were enabled to spread into all the practically vacant continents, while at the same time, by their triumphs in organization and mechanical invention, they acquired an unheard-of military superiorily as compored with their former rivals. To these two facts is primarily dus the further fact, that for the first time there is really something that approaches, a world civilization, a world movement. The apread of the European peoples since the days of Ferdinand the Catholic and Ivan the Terribla has been severy as and over every continent. In places the conquesta have been ethnic, that is, there has been a new wandering of the peoples, and new commonwhiths have spruing up in which the people are sattrely ar maining of European blood. This is what happened in the temperate and sub-tropical regions of the Western Hemisphere, in Australia, in portions of northern Asta and southern Africa, in other pisces the conquest has been purely political, the Europeana representing for the most part merely a small caste of soldiers and doministrators, as in most of tropical America. Finally, here and there issuances ocministrators, as in most of tropical Asta and Africa and in much of tropical America. Finally, here and there issiances occur where there has been no conquest at all, but where an alian-people is profoundly and radically changed by the mera impact of western civiliaation.

There are of course-many grades between, these different types of influence, but the net outcome of what has occurred during the last four centuries is that civilization of the European type now exercises a more or less profound effect over practically the entire world. There are nooks and corners to which it has not yet penetrated; but there is all precent no large space of territory in which the general movement of civilized activity deed not make likely more or less felt. This represents as mething wholly different from which has ever hitherto been seen. In the greatest days of Roman dominion the influence of flome was felt over only a reliable to the more of the world: In the greatest days of Roman dominion the influence of Rome was feit over only a relatively small portion of the world's aurface. Over much the isrger part of the world the process of change and development was absolutely unaffected by anything that occurred in the thoman empire; and those communities the play of whose influence was feit in action and reaction, and in inter-action, among themselves, ware grouped immediately around the Mediterranean. Now, however, the whole world is bound together as never before; tha bonds are sometimes those of hatred rather than love, but they are bonds novertheless.

All the Nationa Linkad.

All the Nationa Linkad. Frowning or hopeful, every man of leadership in any line of thought or effort must now look beyond the limits of his own country. The student of sociology may live in Berlin or St. Petersburg, Roms or London, or ha may live in Melbourns or San Francisco or Ruenoa Aires; but in whatever city he lives, he must pay heed to the studies of men who live in each of the other cities. Whan in America we study labor problems and attempt to deal with subjects such as life insurance for wage-workers, we lurn to see to deal with subjects such as life insur-ance for wage-workers, we lurn to see what you do here in Germany, and we also turn to see what the far-off com-monwealth of New Zealand is doing. When a great German scienist is warring against the most dranded enemies of man-kind, creatures of infinitesimal size which the micruscope reveals in his blood, ha against the most draaded enemies of mankind, crasiures of infinitesimat size which the micruscope reveals in his blood, ha may spend his holidays of study in central Africa or in easiern Asia; and ha must know what is accomplished in the laboratories of Tekyo, just as he must know the details of that practical application of science which has changed the lathmus of Passins from a death-trap into what is simost a health resort. Every progressive in China is striving to introduce western methods of education and administration, and hundreds of European and American books are now translated into Chiness. The influence of European governmental principles is strikingly lilustrated by the fact that admiration for them has broken down the irun barriers of Moslem conservatism, so that their introduction has become a burning question in Turkey and Versia; while the very unrest, the impatience of European or American control, in India, Egypt, or the Philippines, takes tits form of demanding that the government be assimilated mora close-

States.

So much for the geographical side of the espansion of modern civilisation. But only a few of the many and intense activities of modern civilisation have found their espression on this side. The move-ment has been just as stilking in its con-quest neer natural forces, in its searching inquiry into and about the soul of things.

Conquest Over Nature.

conquest over nature has included an extraordinary increase in every form of knowledge of the world wa liva in, and also an extraordinary increase in the power of utilizing forces of nature. In both directions the advance has been very great during the past four or five centuries, and in both directions it has gone on with ever increasing ramidity during directions the advance has been very great during the past four or five centuries, and in both directions it has gone on with ever increasing rapidity during the last century. After the great age of Rome had passed, the boundaries of knowledge shrank, and in many cases it was not until well-nigh our ows times that her domain was once again pushed beyond the ancient landmarks. About the year 150 A. D. ttolemy, the geographer, published his map of central Africa and the sources of the Nils, and this map was more accurate than any which we lisd as late as 1850 A. D. More was known of physical science, and more of the truth about the physical world was guessed at, in the days of Pilay, than was known ar guessed until the modern movement began. The case was the same as regards military science. At the close of the Military aclence. At the close of the Military aclence, and my improvement in them was more than offset by the loss in knowledge of military organisation, in the science of war, and in military leaderstip since the days of tlannibal and Caesar.

A hundred years ago, when this university was founded, the methode af transportation did not differ in the essentials from what they had been among the highly civilized actions of antiquity. Travelers and merchandtee went by land in wheeled vehicles or on beasts of burden, and by sea in boats propelled by salis or hy oars; and news was coavayed as it siways had been conveyed. A graduato of your university today can go tomid-Asis or mid-Africa with far less conscioueness of performing a fest of note than would have been the case a handred years ago with a student who visited Sicily and Aadalusia.

Moreover, the invention and use of machinery run by steam or electricity have worked a revolution in industry as great as the revolution in transportation, so that hers. Ain the difference between worked a revolution in industry as great as the revolution in transportation, so that here ... vain the difference between ancient and ... dern civiliantion is one act merely of legree but of kind. In many vital respect to the huge modern city differs more from all preceding cities than any of these differed one from the other; and the giant factory town is of and by itself one of the most formidable problems of modern life.

Beam and electricity have given the race daminion over land and water auch as it never had before; and now the conquest of the sir is directly impending. As books preserve, though through time, so the telegraph and the telephone transmit it through the space they annihilate, and the telegraph and the telephone transmit if through the space they and bilaie, and therefore minds are swayed one by another without regard to the limitations of apaca and time which formerly forced cach community to work in comparative lastation, it is the same with the body as with the brain. The machinery of the factory and the farm enormously multiplies bodily skill and vigor. Countess trained intelligences are at work to teach us how to avoid or counteract the effects of waste.

The advances in the realm of pura intellect have been of equal note, and they have been both intensiva and estensive.
Great virgin fields of learning and wisdom have been discovered by the few, and at the same time knowledge and at the same time knowledge has apread among the many to a degree never draumed of before. Old men among us have seen in their own generation the rise of the first rational selence of the avolution of life. The astronomer and the chemist, the psychologist and the historian, and all their brethres in many different fields of wills endeavor work with torian, and all their brethres in many dif-ferent helts of wildo endeavor, work with a training and knowledge and method which are in effect instruments of pre-cision differentiating their labora from the labora of their predocessors as the rifie is differentialed from the bow. The play of new forces is us swident in the moral and spiritual world as in the world of the mind and the body.

One Dangar of Civilization. One of the prime dangers of civilization has always been its tendency to cause the loss of the virile fighting virtues, of has always been its tendency to cause the loss of the virtie fighting virtues, of the fighting edges. When mes get too comforts bis and lead too luxurious lives there is always danger leat the softness eat like an actd into their manifess of fiber. The barbarism, because of the very conditions of list life, is forced to keep and develop certain hardy qualities which the man of civilisation trude to lose, whether he be clerk, factory hand, merchant, or even a certain type of farmer. Now t will not assert that in modern civilized society these tendencies have been wholly overcome; but there has been a much more successful effort to overcome them than was the case in the early civilizations. This is curiously shown by the sufficient of five centuries here is flurops and among unions of European descent. In the days centuries here is flurops and army to an army of mercenarics. In the change was steadity from a citizen army to an army of mercenarics. In the days when the Romas republic conquered what world it knew, the armies were filled with citizens refused to serve in the armies, or becams unabla to render good services. The Greek acidiera. But gradually the citizens refused to serve in the armies, or became unable to render good services. The Greek states described by Pelybius, with but few soveptions, hired others to do their fighting for them. The Homans of the days of Augustus had uiterly ceased to furnish any cavairy, and were rapidly ceasing to furnish acy infuntry, to the legions und cohorts. When the civilization same to an end, there were no longer citizens in the ranks of the seedlars. The citates from the citizen army to the army uf mercanaries had been compisted.

Modern Citizens' Armies.

Modern Citizena' Armies. Naw, the exact raveras has been the case with us in modern times. A few centuries ago the mercenary soldier was the principal figure in most armies, and in the principal figure in most armies, and in great numbers of cases the mercenary soldier was an alien. In the wors of religion in Grance, in the Thirty Years' war in Germany, in the wars that immediately marked the beginning of the break-up of the great Polish kingdom, the regiments and brigades of forcign soldiers formed a striking and leading feature in svery army. Too often the men of the country in which the fighting too, place played merely the ignoble part of victims, the burghers and peasants appearing in but fimited anmhore in the mercenary armies by which they were plundered. Gradually this has all changed, until now practically avery army is a citizen army, and the mercenary has almost dies red, while the army exists on a vaste, a then ever tefore in history. This is so among the military monarchies of Europe.

nn a vaste, — than ever before in materies of Europe.

In our own Civil war of tha United States the same thing occurred, peaceful people as we are. At that time more than two generations had passed since the War of Independence. During he whole of thist, period the people had been engaged in no life-and-less at a truesie; and yet, when the Civil war broke out, and after some cosily and hitter lassons at the beginning, the fighting spirit of the people was shown to better adrantage than ever before. The war was peculiarly—war for a principle, a war waged by ach side for an ideal, and while sould not and shortcomings were pleniful among the comhetanis, there was comparatively little sordidness of mnitys or conduct. In such a giant struggle, where across the warp of so many purposes, dark strands and hright, strands somber and hrilliant, are siways interiwined; insvilably there was corruption hara and there in the Civil war, but all the leadars on both sides, and the great majority of the enormous masses of fighting man, wholly digregaried, and were wholly ualnfluenced by pecuniary considerations.

Wealth and Politics. Wealth and Politics.

Wealth and Politics.

Another siriking contrast in the course of modern civilisation as compared with the later atages of the Graeco-Roman orginsel civilisation is to be found in the relations of wealth and politica. In classic times, as the civilisation advanced toward its sentite, politics becams a recognized means of accumulating grant wealth. Caesar was again and again on the verse of bankruptcy; in spent an enermous fortune; and he recouped himself by the money which he made out of his political-military career. Augustus established imperial Bome on firm foundations by the use he made of the huaffortune he had sequited by plunds. What a contrast is offered by the excerce of Washington and Lincoin! There ware a few exceptions in ancient days; but the timmanea majority of the Greeks and the Bomens, as their civilisations culminated, accepted money making an a large acels as one of the incidents of a successful public rareer. Now sil of this is in sharp contrast to what has happened within the last two or three centuries. During this tima there has been a steady growth away from the theory that money-making le permissible in an honorable public correct.

In the recepet the atendard has been le permissible in an henorable public career.

In thie respect the standard has been constantly elevated, and things which sistesmen hait no heelitation in deing three centuries or two centuries age, and which did not serionely hurt a public career even a century age, are now utterly impossible. Wesithy rien still exercise a large, and sometimes an improper, influence in politics, but it is apt to be an indirect influence; and in the advanced sistes the mera suspicion that the weslih af public men is obtained or added to as an incident of thair public careers will bur them freen public life. Spesking generally, wealth may very greatly influence modern political life, but it is not acquired in political life.

Optimistic for the Future. Optimistic for the Future.

Mr. Roosevelt called attention to the fact that hitherto every civilization that has sriven has been able to develop only a few activities, its field of endeavor being limited in kind as well as in locality, and each of these civilizations has fallen. What is the lesson to us of today? he asked. Will the erash come, and be all the more terrible because of the lamonse inerease in setivities and area? To this he replied:

Personally, I do not believe that our civilization will full, I think that an the civilization will full. I think that an that whole was have grown better and not worse. I think that on the whole the future holds more for us than even that great past has held. But, assuredly, the dreams of golden glory in the future will not come true unleas, high of heart and airong of hand, by our own mighty deeds we make them come true. We cannot affect the develop and the come true. atrong of hand, by our own many we make them come true. We cannot afford to develop say one set af qualities, any one set of activities, at the cost of seeing others, equally necessary, alrophied Neither the military efficiency of the Mongol, the extraordinary husiness the Mongol, the extraordinary numbers ability of the Phoenician, nor the subtla and poliched inicitect of the Greak availed to avert destruction.

We, the men af today and of the future, need many qualities if we are to do our work well. We need, first of all and most important of all the qualities which most important of all, the qualities which shad at the base of individual, of family life, the funtamental and essential quali-ties—the homely, every—day, all-important ties—the homely, every-day, all-important virtues. If the avarage man will not work, if he has not in bim the will and the power to be a good husband and father; if the average woman is not a good housewife, a good mother of many healthy children, then the state will topple, will gn down, no matter what may be its brilliants of artistic development or material achievement. But these homely qualities are not enough. There must, in addition, be that power of organisation, that power of working in common for a common end, which the German people have shown in such signal fashion during the last haif-century. Moreover, the things of the apirit are avan more important than the things of the body. We can tant than the things of the body. We cea well do without the hard intolerance and arid intellectual barrenness of what was worst in the theological systems of the past, but there has never been a greater need of a high and fins religious spirit than at the present lims. So, while we can laugh good-humpeddy at some of the pretensions of modern philosophy in its various branches, it would be worse than felly on our part to ignors our need of intellectual leadership. Must Stasr Middla Course.

Never has philanthropy, humanilariantem, seen such davelopment as now, and though we must all beware of the folly, and the 'viciousness no worea than folly, which marks the believer in the perfectibility of mas when his heart runs away with his head, or when vanily usurps the place of sonscience, yet ws must remember also that it is only by wirking along the lines laid down by the philanthropists, by the lovers of mankind, that we can be sure of lifting our divilization to a ligher and more permanent plans of well-being lian was ever attained by any preceding civilization. St. Louis.-Nine persons are thought to have been drowned when the river steamer City of Saltillo, bound on tha Mississippi river from St. Louis for fennessee river polata, struck a rock and sunk at O'en Park, Mo. The steam boat was driven toward the Missouri shore for an unknown cause and when in twenty feet of water alruck the rock, which sent her to the bottom.

A few of the survivors reached the shore, where four of the women passengers were found to be missing, Many of the men passengers are maccounted for and are believed to have perished also. The aurvivora imme dialely lent themseleva to the work of dragging out the atruggling men and women in the water. The big boat when it airuck the tock immedately careened toward the whore, and the sleeping women and men were thrown from their berths.

The ateambost was tosded with 27 passengers, including women and

The boat sank within flev ntinutes after atriking the rock, giving the occupauta of the craft no chance for a dash for life.

At the first impact the boat leaged far shoreward and the cries of the women and children mingled with the tearing of the hoat's under timbers.

When nearing filean Park, thirty miles south of St. Lonia, the boat fell luto a shoreward draw of the current which dragged it landward despite the frantic efforts of the pilot.

Every effort to stave the hig boat from the bank was fruttless, and, deaplie the raveralag of the engines, the boat almost drifted to the bank, when It struck the rock.

The condition of the auralrors was nitiable, and all attempts to obtain ininformation from any of them was well nigh luiposs'ble because of their almost hysterical condition

HAVE AGREED ON VANDERBILT

Chief Justics O'Rear of Kantucky Sattlad Quastion.

Asheville, N. C .- Aeting as volumtary peacemaker, Ch ef Justice Edward t'. D'itear of the Kentucky court of appeals, has settled the Vanderbill quantion. While he refuses to discuss the terms or even to acknowledge that an ead to the long fight has come, his statement before the committee on education, coupled with information front other sources and certain alguificant circumsiancea, simost positively confirms the fact. As a result of his negolistions with Chancellor Kirkland and lilshop Hendrix, with whom he was closeted until after midnight, and with Illahop lfoss, an agreement has been reached whereby the rights of the church in the univarsity are accepted by all parties, the general conference will elect four trustees to fill the pres ont vacancies and no lawsuit will be brought to out the church from ownerable and control of the university.

It is understood that every member of the board of trust will be brought here this week to sign the agreeemnt. which certifies that the board of trust "uccepts" the decision of the Vanderbilt commission in toro, will yield ence to the absolute supreme jud cial control of the college of bishops and will not contest the right of the general conference to fill vacancies on the board of trust in any manner it sees fit, either by its own selection or by delegated authority.

Light on Cause of Tuberculosis. The sixth annual meeting of the Na tional Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis was held In Washington on May 2 and 3. Among the most interesting papers was one by Dr. William H. Park, the famous psthologist and head of the laboratories of the New York city department of health. Doctor Park contended that pulmonary tuberculosis is very rarely, if ever, caused by infection from bovine sources, such as the drinking of wilk or the eating of meat. Tubercuiosis of the stomach and internal organs, which compose only about ten per cent, of the sickness from this disease, are often caused by drinking or eating infected matter. Doctor Park substantiated his conclusions by showing the results of years of investigation and examination of pathological specimens. His conclusions are substantially those reached by Dr. ltobert Koch, the discoverer of the tuberculosis bacilius.

Governor Willson Issues Invitations to Attend Dedication of New Capitol.

Frankfort, Ky,-The capitol commission decided to invite every person in Kentucky to attend the dedication of the capitol, and as chairman of the commission Gov. William issued the following invitation:

To Ali Our Teople of Kentucky and to Ali Our Neighbors: You are cordisily invited by the citizens' committee and the capitol commission, through the governor as chairman, to attend the dedication of the new capitol at Frankfort, Ky., on Thursday, June 2, 1910, and a reception to be held at the new capitol at night from 7:30 to 11 o'clock. Senator W. O. luadicy will deliver the principal address.

GREAT CROWD SAW DERBY.

ield a Spiandid One and Draw Spactators to Churchill Downs from Everywhere.

Louisville, Ky.-The Keutucky Derby of 1910 has passed luto history. What the Derby at Epsom Downs Is to England, the Mcibourne Cup to Australla and the Grand Prix to the French turf, the classic event at Churchill Downs this season ranks the same in America.

The old-timers of the turf-tho few that are left-point with pride to the days when they witnessed tirey Eagle and Wagner battle for supremacy. Those of later days recan the famous contest between Longfellow and Hareffect of bringing up from the depths ry liassett. Those fortunate enough see the contest jot it down with the same remembrance that the oldtimers revere the great Derbies of other days.

Tho management of the New Louisville Jockey club had done all in its power to make this year's Derby as nearly an international race as it could be with only flome-bred horses fighting for the laurels that crown the victor. They provided a place for the man of inilitious, who can go in his $10,000 motor, while they had also provided a free field for the citizens not so lortunate in a financial acuso. Ho saw the race, however, and cheered the victor with the same enthusiasm as the litizen, who, on the clubbonse veranda. with his kid-gloved hands, applauded the lucky horso,

The railroad company placed an iron fence around the grounds—and if they heve ever done anything else toward making e park of it, we have failed to see it. At many of the company's statione along the line are smail parks which heve been given the usual ettention this spring and are now things of beauty. But Hickman'e park ground is a mass of weeds, unkept trees, etc.,-a disgrace to the city, and as tacky looking as eny back yard in town. #### "Automobile Face" Scare Vanishes

WASHINGTON.—A little while after automobiles had come into general use, those newspapers which concern themselves more with fancy than with fact began to worry in their columns about what they termed "the automobile face." They had cartoons showing faces lined and marked, with squinted eyes.

Thuse came, the papers said, from the habit of speeding cars. The pspers figured that when a motorist gripped the wheel and started shead at the strip of dusty road that was spinning under the car, there was so much tension that the lines and squint came without the driver's being aware of

Which is apropos of horsehack riding. Here in Washington the sutomobile is in more or less general use, but it is not crowding the horse as it is doing in Cleveland. Though Roose velt is not here to keep the fashion going, to insist upon it hy his exsuple, horseback riding is much in vogue. And a majority of the riders are women. This brings us to the "horseback face." It is the haughtiest face we have seen. When the daughter of a diplomat, say, goes forth-riding astride by the way-she look neither to the right nor to the left She poises her hare head erect, and spurs over the hills and for away.

Mrs. Herbert Wadaworth started from Mount Vernon, with a party of friends as her guests, recently. After luncheon they hegan a 300-mile journey, visiting Manssas, Shensndosh, and other places of historic interest. This announcement was made:

667 T'S up to you," said the suffragists to congress, and it took 50 automobiles and a ton of paper to carry the message to the capitol. Those who expected to see a suffragette demonstration, as often occurs in the halls of the English houses of parliament, were disappointed.

With hanners affoat and finery sfluteter, in a procession of taxicabs nearly a mue long, the suffragists moved on Capitol hill and presented to congress 400,000 individual demands for votes for women. The mammoth national pelition was divided into little ones, each nicely tied with a bit of yellow ribbon and grouped into little hundles of just the convenient size for a suffragette to carry under her arm.

Hints For Hostess

Suggestions for Entertainments, and Other Matters of Moment, Edited by Madame Merri

May's last special day comes on the | dear little boxes filled with homethirtieth-Memorial day. It is worthy made condy to take home of recognition by every loyal American citizen and should be a day honored reverently by old and young.

it ir, with all its sadness, a day of great thankfulness, inasmuch as the gray and blue" sre united as one man under the glorious Stars and Stripes.

An occasion of unusual interest is being planned for next Saturday night by a sevoted daughter of an old soldier, it is to be a "camp fire" to which six men of the Loyal Legion are hidden as honored guests. Each man is requested to relate a war story of ten minutes' duration from his setual experience, and each is to wear something (If he has anything) that he wore during the war. The host is to receive in his uniform (captain's), that was made for him in a southern city nearly half a century sgo,

The rooms are to be decorated with flags and pictures of war heroes, and there is to be a big wood blaze in the fireplace. The refreshments are to be hard-tack, coffee, grilled becon sendwiches, pie, doughnuts, pickies and cheese. War songs are to he sung, and the wives of the six soldier guests are to come dressed as the girls of '61 and serve the refreshments, but this is a surprise, so let us hope none of the men will read "Dame Curtaey" today. Pipes, cigurs and liquid refreshments are to be conveniently near at hand to facilitate the story telling.

Would thet every old soldler throughout the length and breadth of our fair land could receive a personal hand-class and a smile of recognition on this coming Memorial day.

A Tanth Wedding Anniversary. For the invitations have little aquares of sheet tin lettered with paint, inclose in envelopes to fit exactly. For a table centerplece use a large cake tin with a funnel in the center, in which pisce the flower chosen, with plenty of trailing vines to radiats over the table. Have candlesticks made of tin with shades of the same material pierced to show the light through like the enes of brass are made. For the side dishes have a tinsmith make little odd dishes and The moon plates, also spoons may be purchased with tin cups just the right size for coffee. Salad may he served in Individual gem pans, also the ice cream in tin molds; first, of course, lining both the saiad and cream time with waxed paper. It was announced that the king was suffering from perityphiltis, and on June 24 he underwent an operation. After soma weeks of the greatest anxiety ha recovered, and the coronation took place August 9.

During the long years of his princehood Edward's public duties consisted solely la the office of representing the royal family at all manner of public events, and he performed these du-tics well. But the deadly monotony of such a life was too much for the vigorous man, and ha found relaxation in amusements that frequently gave rise to scandate and that gave the world a wrong impression of his real character. He was especially fond of the theater and smong his boon companions for years were actreeses and actors. Also he developed a great liking for Paris and often visited that gay capital incognito. But all this, as has been said, was only his relaxation, and after coming to the throne his conduct always was ao circumspect that not the most captions critic could find any fault with it.

Edward was always a liberal patron of art and science and manifested a lively interest is exhibitions, cusritable institutions, the housing of the prior, agriculture and other matters that coacerned the welfare of his subjects. weakest organ. If there is weakness of stemech, liver or hugs, there is weak link in the chain of life which may snap at any time. Often this so-called "'weakness" is caused by lack of autrition, the result of weakness or disease of the stomech and other organs of digestion and sutrition. Diseases and weaknesses of the stomach and its allied organs are sured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. When the week or diseased stomach is cured, diseases of other organs which seem remote from the stomach but which have their origin in a diseased condition of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition, are sured also.

The strong man has a strong atomoch. Take the above recommended "Discovery" and you may have a strong stemach and a strong body.

JOSH'S CAN OPENER

INVENTION SURELY LOOKED LIKE A WINNER, BUT-

Mervalous invention Was Brought to Nought Through Devices of Neughty Burgtar, Whita the School Taacher Wanderad.

Dave, having chosen a fat cigar, being of a methodical mind, rung up five cents on the cash register and seated blinself with his beels on the stove He blew a reflective cloud of amoke which, incidentally, all landed in Hi ram Jomes' left eye. When the laughter occasioned among the company by filram's back somersault had dled away, Dave, being king in his own bar, began:

"Taikin' 'bout cranks and hugs, I don't know if any of youse hoys knew Josh Jenka what used to live here way back some years. I guess ye don't. Josh was the most all-fired mechan'cal cuss I over sot eyes upon. an' that's sayin' no few. Always inventlu' somethin', he were, except the way to make money, which was bad for Josh, not to mention trade. I look a frien'ly interest in Josh, him bein' by way of a distant relative of mine, and oftiliues of an arternoon Josh would look in an' sit on that stool an' talk, not that bis talk was easy to get at, always 'bout triangles an' dinay mice, which I took was to do with 'lec

'Things was goin' bad with Josh, an' I was eayin' to myself that his inventin' fever was 'bont over, when he comes in one day wavin' a great can an' plante it on the counter. I ducks feller had, but when I sees nothin' doin' I popa up, lettin' on I had been lookin' for cork. "Lo, Josh,' says 1. 'Dave,' says he, 'I'va got 'em hip sn' thigh now. itehold Josh Jenks' patent self-openin' can. Trademark, "Opens at the word o' command "

"It 'pears ha had been readin' some kind of a kid's book-'flavin' Nights. or authin' 'bout a fellar. Ally limbby, what found a robbers' cava chockful of gold dust an' joolry, an' made the rocks open when he up an' says the password of 'Open Selze Ilim," or some sich truck. Well, Josh's idear was to fix a kin' of a tatkin' machine to the preserve cans, to work back'ards, ye see, so that whan ye says 'Open Selze Him' into a hole, the blamed thing gits to workin' and off pope the lid all its own. He gits me to say the password, an' I'll be hanged! If the crnery of thing don't give a click-click an' act 'cordin' to the word. Great, it was, an' I last Josh ten beans to git it patanted, there bein' a little idear of me gittin' half profits. Then Josh takes it roun' to all the cannin' firms, an' one on 'em was fool amough to take it on trial, the understandin' bein' that Josh was to git ten thousan' if it were any good. There was no holdin' in Josh, an' be spends all he has treatin' the boys an' taikin' bout what ha was goin' to do with

"Soon Josh's cans were on the marhat, an' spite of one Dutchte who come seekin' John's blood, because he mar starved to death on a Sunday owin' to him hein' unable to 'Open Seize iilm,' all went with bells. Then the barral bust. blamed burgiar got into Deacon Walk ar's store, where ha had laid in 'bout a hundred dollars' with of canned stuff with Josh's patent, an' like a doggoned edyut he reads the label, an' to to test it, says 'Open Seize llim,' an' blame if all them cans didn't begin to go off like crackers. The neighbors, hearin' the noise, gits scared, thinks some varmint is gittin' ready to blast Gunville off the map an' selle into deacon's store. The burgier gives a yell an' gits away by a back winder wbile the neighbors do 'bout $250 damage chasin' thro' the "Deacon he comes down on the can company, an' they comes down on I lent Josh a dollar, an' there must be a power of interest due, for to this here day I ain't act eyes ou Josh. That were the last I heard on him, though I guess he's flyin' airships now under a nomdyplum,"

"What kin' of a fixin' had Josh on the can?" said the school teacher. 'Aw, go on!" said Dave. "Another of them mechanical cusses, Closin' time, boys."-Judge.
